I really liked this cool and funny game.

it's free to play

and for free to play game

it's really cool and me and my friends playing together on this game.

i am supporting this game. and i think the creators made a real nice,cool and funny game. Waste of money. Basic skins looks best.. Total♥♥♥♥♥game made on ♥♥♥♥♥

Unity engine..... like this simple game.. Great Extension of Crysis 1 !. Phoenix Force is equivalent to one of those old avoider-style Flash games where you just don't touch anything. You don't even get to control when to use your special. There's not a single decision to make. Calling it a shoot 'em up is generous. Go play one of the many superior shmups on Kongregate instead.

If you like casual puzzle games then you might like this, this is very similar to Bejeweled only not as good IMO. It uses the same principle, match the gems to destroy them etc and get the best score you can, there is a few different game modes to play but nothing special and this isnt something that will keep you going for hours thats for sure, but it is abit of fun none the less.

Overall, its ok for a few mins gameplay here n there but not the best puzzle game in the world, and personally i wouldnt spend any money on it, opt for bejeweled instead.

. In a TWO PERSON game, a third group will come in with crazy overpowered soldiers and ruin the entire match. It is unplayable when it happens. Sometimes they die right away, but if they don't the game you're playing is ruined because they can be impossible to stop.. This last installment of the series is similar in style to the others, and wraps the story up nicely. Many characters from previous episodes return. This episode has choices which lead to multiple endings. It is longer like Episode 3, but doesn't fall prey to excessive dialogue. There were places, however, where I had to check the guide to find out what to do.. I loved this game but it was hard. I had to lose several games mid-late game before I finally prevailed. I've never played any of the military sims that I assume this is based on, so I don't know how it compares. I've always been a fan of King Arthur/Merlin mythology and the writing and art for this game were really fun for me. The special abilities that your knights (think of them as generals that also participate in battle) can learn are a bucket of fun.. Endless fun. Might become my new boxing program xD. I like D.I.P.R.I.P. alot, it reminds me of the old twisted metal games I used to play. It is a shame that no one really plays anymore. The game is worth playing if your a fan of demo-durby type games just be sure that you have friends who will play if you download it though because like I said earlier, there's just no one playing.. Having put in a decent amount of time to this, having played the original version on itch.io, I can tell a vast amount of effort was put in to improve on this nifty little concept. RPaW is proving to be a closet favorite of mine for winding down an evening. There's a good amount of depth to the little world Scott Ethington's put together beyond the main gameplay of sneakily searching for pants - the humorous quips of random citizens hide classist undertones of a world idolizing the haves and demonizing the have-nots. Each corner of the map holds a unique challenge of stealth with different takes on the same base mechanisms (a bush hides your shame just as well as a rack of clothes).

I'm not one to buy into the speed-running metric that's tracked by the game, but I certainly can appreciate the challenge in collecting as many pants as you can (working your way up the chain of the 'have's, eh?), which is compounded by the compulsion to keep moving and not apply the pants you already have.

Definitely more to this than one would first think, and very much worth the amount I'll usually spend on a muffin in the morning!. never had a videogame made me smile and laugh at myself. I am sadden by the fact that I really suck at math. I also am amazed that a 7 year old is trolling me by producing a videogame that not only challeges and yet still impresses me. I find that the reviews of this game are toxic because they hold a standard of how a videogame should be or shouldnt be but the people wrote those reviews lack the fundamental (spellcheck) design structure of how videogames are created. Games are created using coding , this little girl coded a program that not only works well and it is culturally relevant....(In others words, this game is unique and different from what steam offers.)

To the creator, Keep producing new exciting stuff. one suggestion to make this a better software, is to have an ablility to play with my friends on a multiplayer scale. When you become my age (28 years old) you will understand how much potential this can have if this was turned into a drinking game.... My best friend and partner in crime (my girlfriend) laughed at my inability to do math and decided to do shots everytime we got a question wrong. So i hope to see multiplayer functions to share scores on steam or some way that more people get involved. I was able to screenshot my score of -10 to my gf via facebook/steam/social media;but it felt only one side because the multiplayer option is limited.

I wish you the best of luck in all that you do, I will purchase this product and future products again....
